Foreword

The Museum of New Mexico has been host to the Fiesta Show for fifty years. An open-door non-juried exhibition restricted only by the space available, the Fiesta Show came into being at a time when such shows were encouraged as a means to take academic art off its pedestal and bring it closer to everyday life. Distinguished American painters John Sloan and Robert Henri championed the idea of the open-door exhibition.

It has been the policy of the annual Fiesta Show to welcome amateur, semi-professional, and professional artists ranging in style from conservative to progressive. The diverse variety creates an affirmation of the freedom of the artist to create in his own way regardless of current fashion.

The exhibition is one of the major events during the Santa Fe Fiesta. For the residents of New Mexico and summer visitors from all parts of the nation, the Fiesta Show offers a cross section view of art activities in New Mexico.

On this fiftieth anniversary the Fine Arts Museum extends thanks to the participating artists, the awards committee, and all who won prizes.
